Through interactive and creative demonstrations, crafts, and projects, students see how the body works and what goes wrong when diseases appear. Our “student doctors” not only learn how to use a stethoscope, but will learn what they hear when they listen to the patient’s heartbeat. We discuss why murmurs sound the way they do and will get our first look at an EKG.

As “student surgeons” they learn how to sew like a real surgeon, tie knots, and do a hernia repair with mesh! In the blood section, they make a model of normal blood and then see first hand what goes wrong with leukemia and sickle cell disease. Additionally, students learn what it takes to prepare for being pre-med in college and learn important tips to be a successful candidate. This is just a sampling of the many exciting topics we explore. Over six hours of interactive instruction, kids will have a chance to learn about and use common doctor’s tools, how air flows through the lungs, what happens to food when we eat, how the heart works, and campers get to take home their own stethoscope at the end of the course!
